

9. The method of claim 8, further comprising:

associating a distinctive region of calling point positions with each of the plurality of selective radio buttons; selecting a first default one of the selective radio buttons when the calling point is within a first region that is not associated with any of the plurality of selective radio buttons;

and

selecting a second default one of the selective radio buttons when the calling point is within a second region that is not associated with any of the plurality of selective radio buttons.